

Roofing Success Starts with Partnership

The combined strength of your contractor and Goliath Roofing Systems

A Roofing Project Is More Than a Membrane

Choosing a roofing system is an important decision. Equally important is choosing the team that stands behind it.

When a contractor installs a Goliath PVC roofing system, building owners benefit from the combined expertise of both the roofing professional and the manufacturer.

This collaborative approach helps support project success from the initial roof assessment through installation and long-term roof performance.

Backed by Decades of Experience

Goliath Roofing Systems is built on more than:

This experience helps ensure consistent manufacturing quality and performance.

A Team Approach to Roofing

Goliath PVC roofing membranes are well-suited for projects across:

- Roof evaluations
- System recommendations
- Installation expertise
- Project management
- Ongoing service and support

Why Manufacturer Support Matters

A roofing system is a long-term investment.

Having the support of both a qualified roofing contractor and an experienced manufacturer helps provide confidence that:

- The right roofing system is being selected
- The roofing assembly is appropriate for the building
- Products are installed according to manufacturer requirements
- Long-term performance objectives are supported
